Welcome Message

from Gary Dale Cearley, AerOceaNetwork's Executive Director

Many of you may well know that I lived fifteen years in Vietnam. I lived in Saigon for ten of those, on two different occasions. Our first network, AerOceaNetwork (AON), was born when I was in this town as well as the holding company, Advanced International Networks Ltd. And many of you will also know that I owned a freight forwarding company in Vietnam from 1996 to 2004. In fact, it was the very first 100% foreign invested logistics company ever licensed in the Socialist Republic of Vietnam. True story. I sold that company years ago and it has been sold since again. It is now known as Swire Logistics.

Why the reminiscing? Vietnam has been a big part of my life so it feels like a personal best to come back to the city with an AGM of a successfully growing network. And it is even more special to me because this year is the fifteen year anniversary of Advanced International Networks Ltd. So fifteen years in Vietnam. Fifteen years of AIN. And I get to share it with some of the most special logistics professionals in the world.

Work hard. Do right by people. Life will treat you well.

Ho Chi Minh, Vietnam

Ho Chi Minh City, also known by the locals as Saigon, is Vietnam's largest city by both population and area and is also the most important commercial center. The city is an important cargo hub not only for Vietnam but within Southeast as well. It is also fast becoming a world class manufacturing center, exporting Vietnamese made products far and wide. The Ho Chi Minh City metropolitan area, together with nearby Bien Hoa, is at the vortex of the largest amount of foreign investment in Vietnam as well.

Besides commercial interests there are also many appealing sites and attractions for the casual visitor to see within the city. Saigon is also not far from other interesting regional areas such as the Mekong Delta and a myriad of beaches up and down Vietnam's long coastline. And within the city there are many famous traditional markets for shopping, such as the Ben Thanh Market, where visitors can get a sense of the real Vietnam. Not to be done by shopping, Saigon boasts a plethora of restaurants from cuisines representing all parts of the world as well as many delicious styles of local fare.
